FAIR MISS BUMGART IN ROLE OF NURSE

GIRL SWINDLER IS PAROLED OUT TO C. S. WHIPPLE AFTER TANGLE.

STARTS DUTIES TODAY

Petite Girl Wins Many Warm Friends
Through Her Fascinating Ways—
Gives Account of Offense.

Unless legal technicalities arise Miss Agnes Bumgart, the fascinating school girl swindler, will never see jail for her offense at Janesville, and will enjoy being paroled out to the Rock county asylum to C. S. Whipple, superintendent. Unless higher authorities rule that the sentence pronounced yesterday by Judge H. L. Maxfield be in accordance with law, Miss Bumgart will pursue the occupation of an untrained nurse and her wages will be three dollars a week with no paid to the county under the provisions of the Huber law.

Sheriff Raises Objections.

It was with some difficulty that the demure girl was placed under the control of Mr. Whipple at the county farm. Under legal advice Sheriff A. O. Chamberlain refused to accept the commitment delivered by Mr. Whipple, because the prisoner had never been in the county jail and he could not legally sign a receipt. The sheriff also refused to parole Miss Bumgart to Whipple unless she was ordered to do so by Judge Maxfield, as the Huber law provides that unless an order is made by the court providing for the place to parole a prisoner, the sheriff shall use his discretion. At four o'clock Mr. Whipple came to the county jail with Miss Bumgart and offered the commitment, which was at first refused on the ground that Whipple was not an officer of the law or empowered to deliver the prisoner or paper. When this was adjusted satisfactorily there was a lengthy wrangle over the parole, and the sheriff insisted that everything was going to be conducted open and above board according to law this time. Objections were raised as to the contract price and an order was made that the county should be paid three dollars a week as wages from Mr. Whipple for the services of Miss Bumgart. After the contract was signed it was further agreed that any time the young lady's services were required at the contract price she should be brought to the county jail and delivered to them.

giving instructions Turnkey William Whelan, the penalty for violation for refusal to work, which is ten days in solitary confinement on a diet of bread and water, and for being in the county, the same punishment in case of escape. It is a prison sentence of one year, counting one-quarter time off for good behavior. Miss Bumgart will have to serve only seven months and twenty-one days on her eleven months' sentence. There was an expression of relief when the commitment tangle was adjusted and Miss Bumgart left with a Mr. Whipple for the Rock county institution.

Ready to Take Punishment

In an interview Miss Bumgart said: "I am ready to serve whatever punishment the court deals out, for I know it was wrong when I wrote out those checks and cashed them, but once I was started I could not stop. My parents came from Germany thirty years ago and I have always lived in Detroit. There are four girls in the family, and I suppose I am the 'black sheep.' I had a good schooling, going to high school, and my environment was one of the best. My father at one time when I was in my childhood, was a well-to-do business man, but fire swept away his modest fortune and then I went to work in an employment agency. When I got this work I stayed at home, and in reading learned of the gentry and for a while yearned the idea stimulated in my mind. My only explanation is that I longed for better clothes and travel. I left with my younger sister, Lucile, for Chicago with my savings, barely enough to pay our railroad fare. We went to the Sherman house, although I had but two dollars in my purse. During the night I conceived the idea of using bad checks, and with fear in my heart I went to the First National bank and obtained the book containing the live checks and signed a name which entered my mind at the moment. I was unacquainted with the use of checks at this time but it was easy to dispose of the paper at the store. I cashed two checks in Chicago and left for the Pacific coast the following day with my sister. At Los Angeles I was out of money and again resorted to passing forty dollar checks and again succeeded. Blindly I kept on, until I reached San Francisco. Here I never visited the exposition, and my experiences were wretched. I laid awake nights wondering how I could stop and reach my home, but still kept on. I never realized that the authorities were after me or that my case had attracted any attention. From California I went north to Portland and had little trouble in securing the money. I know it was wrong, but the girl was unable to continue as she choked back her words. After several minutes she resumed her narrative.

Glad She Was Caught.

"When I came back to the Pelton residence in Milwaukee the Pelton family what caused me to continue my operations in Wisconsin. I am glad that I was caught because I never realized the full amount of wrong I was doing. As to going to the north with the firm resolve that I now have to live down my mistake by a better future. All people make mistakes, it seems. This is mine and my greatest shame is the shame that I have brought upon my parents and friends. I am entirely to blame and I hate to see my name in the paper for I know that my heart is suffering. They have written me several times and offered to take me home when I complete my sentence. The greatest happiness of my life was the fact that my fatal step, for I have proved unworthy of the confidence placed in me by friends. I hope that I will be able to regain this confidence."

The personality of Miss Bumgart is most interesting. She is a slight build, with a delicate colorless complexion. She converses excellently and her words are well chosen. As she talks, she looks straight into the eyes of her auditor and her eyes are most modest. Her large blue-gray eyes are the most distinguishing feature of her face.

Denies the Amount. Spread that the amount taken was over seven thousand dollars," spoke the young lady. "This is positively untrue, for it was impossible for me to obtain that much. I really do not know about the bad checks would total, but I think that it would be less than five hundred dollars. There were two hundred blank checks in the book, and I had over a hundred of them left."

I did not cash the entire other hundred blanks as made out by the detective, for I would take and make out three or four of them, fearing that I had made a mistake on one or two, and when one was cashed, I would destroy the others."

Despite the claims that the amount was less than claimed by the authorities, Miss Bumgart realizes what her fate will be when she completes serving her sentence under the committing law, and her hope that by some means she would be able to compensate the companies and banks that were swindled.

How She Operated.

In her operations at Minneapolis and St. Paul Miss Bumgart successfully evaded a corps of detectives as well as duping a host of bank and department store employees. Her work at the Twin Cities earned her $120 in two days' time. Then she made haste to leave for Milwaukee.

In a letter to the Gazette H. A. Rohnney, assistant cashier for the Power & Light company at Minneapolis, described in a brief and to the point his experience with the fair swindler. His letter says:

"She came up to my window about five o'clock on Friday morning, and asked if I would cash a check for her, flashing me the prettiest smile I've not seen for some time. I asked, 'Have you an account here?' She said, 'Yes, my mother has.' As she looked so innocent and so good looking, I cashed the check, endorsed by Viola Smith. She thanked me and said: 'Looks as though this rain is booked for some time, doesn't it?' This fancy expression later made me suspicious and had such a 'hunch' that 'my goose was cooked,' I telegraphed to the Chicago bank, and sure enough they wired: 'Check mentioned no account. Inkerston St. Paul Agency will communicate with you.'"

Has Exciting Chase.

"Next morning (Saturday) I went over to St. Paul and talked with the Pinkerton agency. I went up to the Emporium and learned that she had been in there just ten minutes before I cashed a $40 check. I hastened over to the Golden Rule, and just missed her one minute, but at that time she had disappeared in the crowd. They refused to cash her check, and she was so anxious to get away from there she was going to leave the check in the cashier's hands. Just imagine my disappointment, missing the fair Viola by one hair and just by a clear case against her and just by a clear case against me with the grueling 'Hello, Viola. Alone and with her fate in my hands. I believe we would have had an interesting little talk and I wonder if I would have turned it over to the police or would she have gained my sympathy."

"Well, she quit operating after leaving the Golden Rule, to the disgust of the big stores, who by this time had netted $120 in the Twin Cities in two days. The Emporium cashed a check six days old, by the date, and yet the ink wasn't dry."

It Was Her Day to Be Absent.

"Some fellows can sure pull down the money easy," growled J. Fuller Gloom. "For instance the person who wrote a recent article of a column and a half telling about the traveling man who smiled and smiled on an aggravating trip because he felt that when he reached his own home his dear, sweet wife would fall into his arms with a great gush of joy. But when he got home the wife was absent, of course—as every real married man would know."—Kansas City, Star.

Use Mailing Tubes.

An excellent receptacle for sending flowers by post is a mailing tube. Lay the waxed paper in such a shape that they will fit the tube. Sprinkle lightly with water. Place a bunch of wet cotton or tissue paper at the ends of the stems. Roll the flowers up carefully in the paper and twist the ends securely. Slide them into the tube. The paper which wraps the tube should be large enough to tuck in well at the ends to prevent the flowers from slipping.

Children Have Pet Jackdaw.

At Jlangylin (Wales) workhouse there is a pet jackdaw. It accompanies the children from the workhouse to and from school regularly, perching on a tree within sight of the door while they are at lessons, and immediately they are out again flies over them on the return journey. On Sundays he accompanies the children to Sunday school in quite another direction.

6% INTEREST 6%

Five years ago we loaned a La Crosse railroad man $1800.00 on an improved farm in North Dakota. We sold this mortgage to one of our Janesville customers. 6% interest has been paid promptly each year. The farm has been rented and has produced good crops. The owner has been earning a good salary in his position and would have taken care of his payments even without any crops from his land. This mortgage comes due and will be paid June 1st. Five years ago when we made this loan the farm securing it was worth $5000.00. Today it is worth $8700.00. Not much chance of a loss on that deal.
We mention this as a fair sample of the hundreds of similar mortgages we have sold in Rock County for the last 15 years and as a fair sample of those we have on hand for sale now.

WOMAN'S PAGE

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH CAMERON

WHEN HALF GODS GO.

Blessed be nothing. Just about once in so often I recall that inspired utterance of the wise old lady who found herself encumbered by too many possessions and suddenly had the vision to see how futile it all was.

Not long ago I heard of a woman who sold two valuable rings because she wanted to take an interesting trip with congenial friends, and had not the money. Some of her friends thought it a very foolish thing to do and told her so. "The trip will be over in a few months," they said, "and the rings will be gone."

"Will I Be Any Poorer?"

"Yes," she said, "I know that, but will I be any poorer?"

"No poorer?"

"Yes, I mean will my life be any poorer. I didn't do it impulsively," she went on; "I looked at the rings and thought, 'Are they enriching my life? Are they enriching it as much as this experience and the memories it would leave me?' And I decided they weren't. I was proud of them merely because they were expensive rings and I didn't consider that pride a particularly enriching experience."

That little story interested me immensely and after I heard it I began to wonder if it would not be a good thing for all of us to look over our possessions occasionally and make them measure up to the question, "Is this enriching my life?"

Once a Possession, Always a Possession.

It is really strange how strong a hold our possessions have over most of us. They seem to put their tentacles around our hearts, and the idea of parting with anything we have owned, no matter how unnecessary to our happiness it may be, is a painful thing. It would bring, to many people a most radical and painful idea.

I have a friend who has a houseful of antique furniture which she has gradually collected and I have a great admiration for her because she is willing to give up some of it, now and then. Whenever she finds she could get a certain sum for any piece, "I always ask myself," she says, "if I would put that money into it now, if I had the money and didn't have the furniture, and if I can't say 'Yes' I let it go."

Getting Rid of the Things That Clog One's Life.

Another friend who has recently moved and thus become impressed, as one never does at any other time, with the multiplicity of her possessions, is selling things right and left—furniture, books, ornaments—it is short everything which she has found is superfluous and is merely clogging her life. Some of her friends think she is half crazy. I don't. More power to her, I say.

You remember the man who turned his back on the greatest adventure that ever beckoned "and went away" because he had great possessions. Do not be like him. Do not let possessions clog your life. Fling them from you if they are keeping you from the true happiness, the real adventures.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married woman twenty-six years old and I have been married ten years to a man thirty-three years old. He has a great love for gambling. He goes away in good spirits and says he will come home, but he doesn't—sometimes not for two or three days. If he takes a notion he will go out of town without telling me.

Sometimes when he comes home he is good natured and says he is ashamed. But sometimes he is very mean and says if I don't like the way he does to leave. He keeps the bills paid and gives me money, but is mad when I spend it for clothes. I have given him a good talking to many times, but it does no good. He goes away every Saturday and Sunday and I am getting tired of it. We have no family, because he doesn't care much for children. He makes twenty-five dollars a week and does not save any. Please tell me what to do. I don't know what to do to make a living for myself and that is the reason I have stuck to him so long.

You have grounds for divorce and the court can force your husband to pay alimony. Ask a judge to recommend to you a good but inexpensive lawyer.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am going to give a surprise birthday party in honor of my sister's thirtieth birthday. Kindly suggest decorations and what food to serve. The birthday is in June.

(2) I would like to have place cards. Are they appropriate for children's parties?

(3) What would be good for favors and how are they used?

(4) Please word an invitation for me so that the person invited will know it is a surprise as well as send them and are they delivered in person or by mail?

(5) Kindly suggest some means of amusement.

(6) It is the month of roses. Carry out a pink and white color scheme. Have bunches of roses in the rooms and serve pink and white cake and have a pink birthday cake.

(7) Little pink crepe paper baskets with rose buds woven into the handles make very pretty favors. They are filled with candy.

(8) It would be very poor taste to mention that the party is a birthday party.

Miss Margie White requests the pleasure of Miss Cella Johnson's company at a surprise party given in honor of her sister on Saturday, the fifth of June, from two until five o'clock, at 128 Fremont street, May twenty-eighth.

Send the invitations two weeks before the party. Mail them.

(9) Mrs. Thompson regrets to say that she cannot print games in the column just now, because her correspondence is too heavy to give space to them.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl seventeen years old and have been invited to a birthday party on a young man twenty-one. Would it be correct to make him a gift and what would be the proper thing to take? It does not go with him.

It is not necessary to give him anything and if I were you I would not. But if you do give a present a book would be the best thing.

Think of more than merely the appearance of the glove—consider what service you can expect it to give. How will they wash? Will the fabric pull and turn yellow and the glove lose its shape and become baggy? How will the tips wear?

In Kayser Silk Gloves every one of these features is guaranteed to give satisfactory service. That is why twelve thousand dealers and millions of American women prefer them—why more of them are sold than of all other silk gloves combined. Be sure you get complete glove value. Ask for Kayser's.

TROTTEUR MODEL.

CLINGING COSTUMES ARE NOW THE RAGE

All the Frocks and Gowns of London Are of Sweet Girlish Model.—Fashion Notes.

By Margaret Mason.

Minerva writes verse in iambics. For light reading Sanscrit she scans. She knows all about Woman's Suffrage. Eugenic race betterment plans. She finds a cube root in a jiffy. Knows language living and dead. Yet dresses in ingenu manner. With wide floppy hats on her head. She affects little frocks of white muslin. With ribbons of tenderest blue. Along with the guile of her garments. She's wearing a baby stare too. Minerva's a shining example. That many's the truth spoke in jest—Remember the adage: "You never get on the way they are dressed."

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

London, May 14 (by mail to New York).—With the usual perverse proclivity of her sex lovely woman along with the enervation of her mentality has reverted to the clinging vine type of costume.

The chastely simple little frock of white muslin is the last word in summer fashion. The white vocabulary consists of all the accompanying blandishments of wide brimmed hats, horns, rose wreaths with ribbon ties and streamers, true lovers' knots of baby pink or blue, crisp ruffles and filmy fluffs, fluffy parasols and all the thousand and one fascinating touches of the sweet young thing.

All of the frocks and costumes, as they call suits in London, are the quintessence of this sweetly girlish mode. Even tiny poke bonnets are again in the field with the floppy leghorn to vie with the more smart and worldly turban and bowler.

Teasing at the Savoy the other afternoon was an adorably fluffy bit of femininity with appealing blue eyes and blonde tresses curling sweetly in front of each ear.

She wore a frock of old blue and gold shot taffeta with a full skirt all of eight inches above her smart blue heeled American pumps.

The skirt was set in points onto a transparent upper of the same hue. The bodice was a surprise effect of the taffeta with bell shaped chiffon finished at eight inch intervals with quaint flat quilled rosettes of the taffeta. A cunning little poke of purple straw circled with purple clematis daintiness. Later I learned she was one of the most advanced and ardent feminists, the most militant of suffragettes.

The shops are showing the most alluring little frocks of white or pastel tinted organdies. One sweet model in flesh tint has a full skirt of two tiers gathered on a rather high baby velvet ribbon with four full blown pink roses finishing the front. The full waist is sleeveless and cut low and round in the neck. Over it is a bolero effect of lace with tiny way to the elbow. This is evidently a forerunner and perhaps we should say a forerunner of the threatened absolutely sleeveless frock for summer afternoon wear.

Pale yellow organdie dresses with two tiered skirts in two tones of yellow look like inverted dandelions and a pink one ruffled from waist to ankle has all the beauty of a full blown rose.

Since hats are absolutely taboo for evening wear at London restaurants and theatres many and divers are the modes for adorning the coiffures.

A chaplet of green leaves on the Titan haired beauty at the Ritz the other night was a stunning addition to her classic Psyche knot and the classic tendency of her white and silver gown.

Yet another red gold head fairly bristled with a fan like arrangement of black aigrettes thrust unfurled in her high French twist.

Bobbed heads are rarely glimpsed but the jeweled band worn low on the brown a la Irene Castle and Paviola is a favorite and artistic form of hair-adornment.

And yet another war fashion is on the face of things! They have even taken the veil and military veils now offer allegiance to Mars by sporting regimental insignia—flags, badges, etc., woven in their airy mesh. Even the red cross is represented—not in color of course—but with the cross motif woven in black threads.

In place of last season's omnipresent single artificial flower or nosegay many women are now wearing a tiny silken flag at throat or girdle.

TOO TOUGH.

Customer—The last steak I got from you I could have soled shoes with. Butcher—Well, why didn't you do it?

Customer—So I would if I could have gotten any nails to go through it.

Glimpses of Married Life

Dr. Ellison felt that since his wife had sent letters broadcast through the country, containing damaging statements about Mrs. Morton, all thought of obtaining a divorce be- hind closed doors must be given up. Mrs. Morton's good name must be openly vindicated.

Mrs. Morton, Dick's mother, was the star witness and when she took the stand and gazed over the crowd assembled, her face expressed a grim expression and a grin.

Her voice rang defiantly to the farthest corner of the court room.

She gave a short, clear account of her various meetings with Mrs. Ellison, ending with an account of her testimony with the statement: "Mrs. Ellison excited her and made her worse. The doctor called every day for a week and now Mrs. Ellison bases her plea for divorce on the number of visits he made."

Now the imperturbable old lady was turned to Mrs. Ellison's lawyer for examination.

"Have you ever testified in court before?" began the lawyer.

"This has that to do with the case?" he practiced truth telling, if that's what you are trying to find out."

Another wave of merriment swept the audience.

You testified that my client warned you of the danger of your son's interest in Miss Rudolph. Is that about the interview," continued the lawyer.

"When I was visiting my daughter this summer," began the old lady.

"Do you refer to your daughter-in-law?" interrupted the lawyer.

"Yes, I avoid in-laws in conversation, and law and lawyers when- ever I can. The batten on trouble," snapped Mrs. Morton, to the delight of the audience.

"Confine yourself to the question, please," said the lawyer sternly.

"How can I when you constantly interrupt?" she replied undaunted.

"Why did you resent her kindly efforts to inform you of the state of things?"

"Kindly!" exploded the old lady. "My son walked home with Miss Rudolph—they lived on the same street—in broad day light, on the public highway. He never saw her alone. This mischief maker whispered about her to the wife in the hope of setting forth a secret flirtation and home. She couldn't look at any act like that and give it an innocent interpretation."

"How do you account for the letter that came into her hands? Was that innocent?"

"Any woman who would take a scrap of a letter that a couple of ferreting maids had discovered and send it to the wife in the hope of making trouble is not fit to be at large in society. The girl was a fool, she has admitted, and was trying to appear to advantage before an equally foolish young woman. My daughter was sensible enough to blow the froth away and no harm was done, but that woman had done her malice and had to make trouble."

She turned and pointed her finger at Mrs. Ellison.

"You did not hear the conversation when my client visited the sick room of your daughter-in-law? I believe you said you were in the yard."

"The doors being open, I heard a good part of it. Your client's voice came well when she is angry."

"What did she say?"

"She threatened the vengeance of a jealous wife, threatened to expose her publicly. This precious circular letter sent to all her husband's patients was the fulfillment of that threat."

"Do you honestly think any woman would go to such lengths with no cause to back of it?" asked the lawyer impressively.

"I can't account for the actions of fools. Can you?" With this parting shot the witness was dismissed.

The judge granted a divorce to the doctor. The payment of alimony was made conditional on the keeping away from Fairport and keeping quiet.

Household Hints

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

Strawberry Jelly.—Wash, hull, mash berries and drain them over night in a jelly bag. To each pint juice use one pound sugar. Bring juice quickly to a boil, boil fifteen minutes, add sugar, stir until sugar is dissolved; boil ten minutes. Put a little in a saucer and stand on the ice if it forms a jelly like crust quickly. If it does not, boil longer. When done put in tumblers, cool and cover with paraffin.

Jellies.—After making jelly, put into canisters the fruit left in your jelly bag after the juice has dripped through, cover with water or boil. Then strain it through the bag sugar and put it in a preserve jar. This is a great economy when lemons are high, as you need only two lemons in a large pitcher of punch.

In planting cucumbers, scatter a little tobacco in the hills and you will not be bothered with bugs; the large black bugs which are so destructive will not bother them. Also, plant late cucumber pickles when black berries are in bloom and you will not be bothered with any bugs.

Here are submitted some salad recipes which are appetizing for both summer and winter.

Apple Salad.—Drain the slices of canned pineapples and arrange each slice on a bed of lettuce; over this put a tablespoonful of boiled dressing, in which plain cream or whipped cream has been added to give a mild flavor for a fruit salad. Now sprinkle grated orange cheese over this, add a dash of paprika and one has a very delicious salad.

Boiled Dressing.—One tablespoonful of butter melted slowly, one tablespoonful of flour, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-half teaspoonful of paprika; mix into a smooth paste, then add one-half cup of water and one-half cup of vinegar, stirring all the time; it cooks to prevent lumps. When thick remove from fire, add yolks of two eggs and one-fourth teaspoonful of prepared mustard. Boil all the time, then set on the fire again; about two minutes to heat the eggs through. This may be kept in a jar in a cool place indefinitely.

Tomato Salad for Four People.—Select four smooth tomatoes the same size, scoop out the inside and place the shells on ice to cool; dice the insides of the tomatoes, add one man- ro dice, one bunch celery diced, and if cared for, one cucumber; drain in a colander to remove juice, then mar- nate in a French dressing, using two tablespoonfuls olive oil to three of vin- eggs salt and pepper to taste, and one- fourth teaspoonful of prepared mus- tard. Fill the tomato cups with the above mixtures when ready to serve. Garnish with parsley.

THE TABLE.

Ham Soup.—When boiling ham, save the water in which it was boiled, and when cool, skim off fat and add rice and sliced vegetables. Boil well and you will have a delicious soup which also will prove a saving.

Hamburg Roast.—With Tomato Sauce.—Two pounds hamburger steak, two tablespoonfuls melted butter, six tablespoonfuls bread crumbs (brown in oven and roll with rolling pin, two level teaspoonfuls salt, half spoon pep- per, one chopped onion. Mix thor- oughly, form into a long, round roll, dip in egg and bread crumbs and lay in buttered bread tin. Four following:

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—But at That Father's Scheme Was Rather Clever.

BY F. LEIPZIGER

THE BABY'S WELFARE
A MOTHER'S DREAD

A fear clutches at the heart of the mother that her own little one may not live long. She dreads its second summer, or that it may never wake from its sound sleep. All mankind loves a mother—loves to see a mother love her child. A baby and its mother are insured against ill-health if the mother takes Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a tonic for women that Dr. R. V. Pierce invented nearly a half century ago for women's ills. This is a vegetable tonic, made only of the choicest roots with glycerine, which puts the female system into perfect, healthy action. Before baby's coming it is just the tonic that puts the womanly system into a proper condition to make the birth painless and to insure a healthy child.

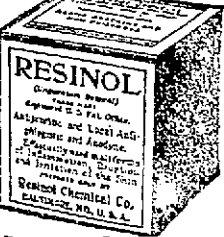

Many mothers of families in the United States have reason to be grateful to the person who recommended Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is put up for the single purpose of curing disease peculiar to women. It has sold more largely on this continent than any other medicine for women. Another point in its favor. It is a temperance remedy and does not contain a single drop of alcohol nor of any narcotic.

Young mothers who preserve the charms of face and figure in spite of an increasing family and the care of growing children are always to be envied. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives the strength and health upon which happy motherhood depends. It practically does away with the pains of maternity. It enables the mother to nourish the infant life depending on her, and enjoy the hourly happiness of watching the development of a perfectly healthy child.

Keep a little note book on your library shelf if you are in the habit of lending your books to your friends. Have it alphabetically arranged and every time you lend a book put down the name of the friend to whom you gave it, together with the title of the book. It is only a matter of a minute to do this, and saves lots of time and worry over trying to locate missing books.

happiness. You deserve happiness—and love."

She gripped my hand fiercely. "I want to be happy! I want to be loved! Oh, I want to be loved!" she cried, so passionately that I turned away, unwilling to be a witness to this outburst of feeling on her part. She slipped her hand out of mine and a second later was through the frame. I had a fleeting glimpse of a slim, adorable ankle. "Goodbye!" she called back in a voice that seemed strangely choked. The spring in the gold mirror clicked. A draft of air struck me in the face. She was gone.

"What an infernal fool you're been," I said to myself as I stood there staring at the black hole in the wall. Then I gently, even caressingly, swung old Ludwig the Red into place. There was another click. The incident was closed.

A very few words are sufficient to cover the expedition in quest of the legendary treasures of the long dead barons. Mr. Bangs accompanied us. Britton carried a lantern, and the three Schmicks went along as guides. We found nothing but cobwebs.

"Conrad," said I as we emerged from the last of the underground chambers, "tell me the truth. Was there ever such a thing as buried treasure in this abominable hole?"

"Yes, mein herr," he replied, with an apologetic grin, "but I think it was discovered three years ago by Count Hohendorf and Count Tarnowsky."

We stared at him. "The deuce you say!" cried I, with a quick glance at the countess. She appeared to be as much surprised as I.

"They searched for a month," explained the old man guiltily. "They found something in the walls of the second tier. I cannot say what it was, but they were very, very happy, my lady." He now addressed her. "It was at the time they went away and did not return for three weeks, if you remember the time."

"Remember it!" she cried bitterly. "Too well, Conrad."

She afterward invited Mr. Bangs and me to dine with her that evening. She also asked Mr. Poopendyke later on.

Poopendyke! An amazing, improbable idea entered my head. Poopendyke!

CHAPTER XVIII.
I Traverse the Night.

THE next day I was very busy, preparing for the journey by motor to the small station down the line where I was to meet Mrs. Titus and her sons. It seemed to me that every one who knew anything whatever about the arrangements went out of his way to fill my already rattled brain with advice.

Just before leaving the castle for the ferry trip across the river that evening I was considerably surprised to have at least a dozen brand new trunks delivered at my landing stage. It is needless to say that they turned out to be the property of Mrs. Titus, expressed by grande vitesse from some vague city in the north of Germany. They all bore the name "Smurt, U. S. A.," painted in large white letters on each end, and I was given to understand that they belonged to my own dear mother, who at that moment, I am convinced, was sitting down to luncheon in the Adlon-Dachau, provided her habits were as regular as I remembered them to be.

I set forth with Britton at 9 o'clock in a drizzling rain. At half past 11 o'clock we were skidding over the cobblestones of the darkest streets I have ever known, careening like a drunken sailor, but not half as surely, headed for the Staatsbahnhof, to which we had been directed by an object in a raincoat who must have been a policeman, but who looked more like a hydrant. I was pouring pitchforks.

"Britton," said I wearily, "have you ever seen anything like it?"

"Once before, sir," said he. "Nürnberg falls, sir."

At half past 12 the train from Munich drew up at the station, panted awhile in evident disarray and then moved on.

A single passenger alighted—a man with a bass viol. There was no sign of the Tituses!

We made a careful and extensive search of the station, the platform and even the surrounding neighborhood, but it was quite evident that they had not left the train. Here was a pretty pass! Britton, however, had the rather preposterous idea that there might be another train a little later on. It did not seem at all likely, but we made inquiries of the station agent. To my surprise—and to Britton's infernal British delight—there was a fast train, with connections from the north, arriving in half an hour. It was, however, late, owing to the storm.

Just ten minutes before 3 the obliging guard came in and roused us from a mild sleep.

"The train is coming, mein herr," "Thank goodness!"

"But I neglected to mention that it is an express and never stops here." My right hand was still in a bandage, but it was so nearly healed that I could have used it without discomfort—note my ability to drive a motorcar—and it was with the greatest difficulty that I restrained a mad impulse to strike that guard full upon the nose, from which the raindrops coursed in an interrupted descent from the visor of his cap.

The shrill, childish whistle of the locomotive reached us at that instant. A look of wonder sprang into the eyes of the guard.

"It—it is going to stop, mein herr!" he cried. "It has never stopped before!" He rushed out upon the platform in a great state of agitation, and we trailed along behind him, even more excited than he.

A conductor stepped down from the last coach but one and prepared to assist a passenger to alight. I hastened up to him.

"Permit me," I said, elbowing him aside.

A portly lady squeezed through the vestibule and felt her way carefully down the steps. Behind her was a smallish, bewhiskered man, trying to raise an umbrella inside the narrow corridor, a perfectly impossible feat.

She came down into my arms with the limppness of one who is accustomed to such attentions, and then wheeled instantly upon the futile individual on the steps above.

"Quick! My hat! Heaven preserve us, how it rains!" she cried in a deep, wheezy voice and—in German.

"Moth"—I began instinctively, but the sacred word died unfulfilled on my lips. The next instant I was scurrying down the platform to where I saw Britton standing.

"Have you seen them?" I shouted wildly.

"No, sir. Not a sign, sir. Ah, see!" He pointed excitedly down the platform.

"No!" I rasped out. "By no possible stretch of the imagination can that be Mrs. Titus. Come, we must ask the conductor. That woman! Good Lord, Britton, she waddles!"

The large lady and the smallish man passed us on the way to shelter, the latter holding an umbrella over her head with one hand and juggling a heavy hamper in the other. They were both exclaiming in German. The station guard and the conductor were bowing and scraping in their wake, both carrying boxes and bundles.

No one else had descended from the train. I grabbed the conductor by the arm.

"Any one else getting off here?" I demanded in English and at once repeated it in German.

He shook himself loose, dropped the bags in the shelter of the station house, doffed his cap to the imperious backs of his late passengers, and scuttled back to the car. A moment later the train was under way.

"Can you not see for yourself?" he shouted from the steps as he passed me by.

Once more I swooped down upon the guard. He was stuffing the large German lady into a small, lopsided carriage, the driver of which was taking off his cap and putting it on again after the manner of a mechanical toy.

"Go away," hissed the guard angrily. "This is the mayor and the mayress. Stand aside! Can't you see?"

"When does the next train get in?" I asked for the third time. He was still bowing after the departing hack.

"Ach, Gott!" he gasped. Collecting his thoughts, he said: "There is no train until 9 o'clock in the morning. Nine, mein herr."

"Ach, Gott!" groaned I. "Are you sure?"

"Jah! You can go home now and go to bed, sir. There will be no train until 9, and I will not be on duty then. Good night!"

"I dare say we'd better be starting home, sir," said Britton dimly. "Something's gone wrong with the plans, I fear. They did not come, sir."

"Do you think I am blind?" I roared. "Not at all, sir," he said in haste, taking a step or two backward.

By the time we succeeded in starting the engine after cranking for nearly half an hour I was so consumed by wrath over the scurrying trick Mrs. Titus had played upon us that I swore she should not enter my castle if I could prevent it. Moreover, I would take headish delight in dumping her confounded luggage into the Danube. We then had trouble with the lamps. At last we were off, Britton at the wheel.

I shall not describe that diabolical trip home. It is only necessary to say that we first lost our way and went ten or twelve kilometers in the wrong direction; then we had a blowout and no quick detachable rim. Subsequently something went wrong with the mud caked machinery, and my unfortunate valet had to lie on his back in a puddle for half an hour. Eventually we sneaked into the garage with our trembling car and quarreled manfully with the men who had to wash her.

"Good heavens, Britton!" I exclaimed suddenly.

He looked at me in astonishment. I admit that the ejaculation must have sounded weak and effeminate to him after what had gone before.

"What is it, sir?" he asked, at once resuming his status as a servant after a splendid hiatus of five hours or more in which he had enjoyed all of the by-products of equality.

"Poopendyke!" I exclaimed, agitated. "I have just thought of him. The poor devil has been waiting for us three miles up the river since midnight! What do you think of that?"

"No such luck, sir," said he grumpily. "Luck! You heathen rascal! What do you mean by that?"

"I beg pardon, sir. I mean to say he could sit in the boat-house and twiddle his thumbs at the elements, sir. Trust Mr. Poopendyke to keep out of the rain."

"In any event he is still waiting there for us, wet or dry, he and the two big Schmicks." I took a moment for thought. "We must telephone to the castle and have Hawkes send Conrad out with word to them." I looked at my watch. It was twenty minutes past 7. "I suppose no one in the castle went to bed last night. Good Lord! What a scene for a farce!"

We retraced our steps to the garage, where Britton went to the telephone. I stood in the doorway of the building staring gloomily, hollow eyed at the well, at nothing, now that I stop to think of it. The manager of the place, an amiable, jocular descendant of Lazarus, approached me.

"Quite a storm last night, Mr. Schmick," he said, rubbing his hands on an oil rag. "I gruffly agreed with him in a monosyllable. 'But it is lovely today, sir. Heavenly, sir.'"

"Heavenly?" I gasped.

"Ah, but look at the glorious sun!" he cried, waving the oil rag in all directions at once.

Swish! Corns Gone!
We Use "GETS-IT!"

2 Seconds, 2 Drops—Corns Vanish!
For everybody with corns, there is in every drug store in the land one of the real wonders of the world, and that's "GETS-IT!" for corns! It's the first and only corn-cure ever known that removes

"Some Fozzy Trot, Wamselle, What? Corns Goe? Yes, I Used 'GETS-IT!'"

Any and every corn or callus without fail, without fussing with thick bandages, toe-harnesses, corn-swelling salves, irritating ointments. It's applied in 2 seconds—bing, bang—2 drops, the work is done, the corn shrivels up, your corn agony ends and the corn leaves forever. Try it! The itching, the pains that dart to your heart's core, the excruciation of having to wear shoes over screaming corns, the danger of blood poison from making them bleed by using knives, razors and scissors—gone at last! "GETS-IT!" is the new, the sure, the simple, painless way. Try it for corns, calluses, warts and bunions. "GETS-IT!" is sold by druggists everywhere. Get a bottle or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

"Smurt, if you please," I snapped. "Ah," he sighed, rolling his eyes, "it is fine to be in love."

A full minute passed before I grasped the meaning of that soft answer, and then it was too late. He had gone about his business without waiting to see whether my wrath had been turned away. I had been joy riding!

The excitement in Britton's usually imperturbable countenance as he came running up to me from the telephone closet prepared me in a way for the startling news that was to come.

"Has anything serious happened?" I cried, my heart sinking a little lower.

"I had Mr. Poopendyke himself on the wire, sir. What do you think, sir?" A premonition. "She—she has arrived," I demanded dully.

He nodded. "She 'as, sir. Mrs.—your mother, sir, is in your midst." The proximity of the inquisitive manager explains this extraordinary remark on the part of my valet. We both glared at the manager, and he had the delicacy to move away. "She arrived by a special train at 12 last night, sir."

I was speechless. The brilliant sunshine seemed to be turning into somber night before my eyes. Everything was going black.

"She's asleep, he says, and doesn't want to be disturbed till noon, so he says he can't say anything more just now over the telephone because he's afraid of waking 'er." (Britton drops them when excited.)

"He doesn't have to shout so loud that he can be heard on the top floor," said I, still a trifle dazed.

"She 'appears to be sleeping in your bed, sir, he says."

"In my bed? Good heavens, Britton, what's to become of me?"

"Don't take it so 'ard, sir," he made haste to say. "Blotchford 'as fixed a place for you on the couch in your study, sir. It's all very snug, sir."

"But, Britton," I said in horror, "suppose that I should have come home last night. Don't you see?"

"I daresay she 'ad the door locked, sir," he said.

"By special train," I mumbled. A light broke in upon my reviving intellect. "Why, it was the train that went through at a mile a minute while we were in the coffee house. No wonder we didn't meet her."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Surely He Didn't Mean—Master of the House (to complaining servant)—"Dear, dear, James, I'm tired of these continual kitchen squabbles." Servant—"Well, sir, 'ow would you like to be called an addle-headed old idiot, supposin' you wasn't one, sir?"

Extremists Who Become Cranks. Writing of the fact that some eye specialists have of attributing almost all physical and mental troubles to the eyes, Dr. S. Dinner
Stories

A Chicago matron of great beauty called one day upon a friend, bringing with her her ten-year-old daughter, who promises to be as handsome as her mother.

The callers were shown into a room where the friend had been receiving a milliner and many hats were scattered about. During the conversation the ten-year-old daughter, herself by trying these on. She was particularly pleased by the effect of the last one. Turning to her mother she said:

"Mother, I look just like you now, don't you?"

"Sh!" cautioned the mother, with uplifted finger. "Don't be vain, dear."

He was deeply in love with his wife, but awfully careless about money matters. He started away on a long business trip, leaving her short of money, and promising to send her a check—which he forgot to do. The rent came due and she telegraphed:

"Dead broke. Landlord insistent. Her husband answered:

"Am short myself. Will send check in few days. A thousand kisses." Exasperated, his wife replied:

"Never mind money. I gave landlord one of the kisses. He was more than satisfied."

Little Minnie was having a birthday party and some of the little guests were discussing the merits of the babies in their homes.

"My little sister is only five months old," remarked Annie, "and she has two teeth."

"My little sister," said Nellie, "is only six months old, and she has three."

Minnie was silent for a moment, then she burst forth:

"My little sister hasn't got any teeth yet, but when she does have some they're going to be gold ones!"

Daily Thought.

The great guiding marks of a wise life are indeed few and simple—to do our duty, to avoid useless sorrow and acquiesce patiently in the inevitable.

A Message To Thin,
Weak, Scrawny Folks

An Easy Way to Gain 10 to 30 lbs. of Solid, Healthy, Permanent Flesh.

Thin, nervous, undeveloped men and women everywhere are heard to say: "I can't understand why I do not get fat. I eat plenty of good, nourishing food." The reason is just this: You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fat-making elements of your food instead of passing them out through the body as waste.

What is needed is a means of gently urging the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and hand them over to the blood, where they may reach the starved, shrunken, run-down tissues and build them up. The thin person's body is like a dry sponge—eager and hungry for the fatty materials of which it is being deprived by the failure of the alimentary canal to take them from the food. The best way to overcome this sinful waste of flesh-building elements and to stop the leakage of fat is to use Sargol, the recently discovered regenerative force that is recommended so highly by physicians here and abroad.

Take a little Sargol tablet with every meal and notice how quickly your cheeks fill out and rolls of firm, healthy flesh are deposited over your body, covering each bony angle and projecting point. All good druggists have Sargol, or can get it from their wholesaler, and will refund your money if you are not satisfied with the gain in weight it produces as stated on the guarantee in each package. It is inexpensive, easy to take and highly efficient.

Caution:—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles, it should not be taken unless you are willing to gain ten pounds or more, for it is a wonderful flesh-builder. Advertisement.

Imagination and the Eye.

Science does not depreciate the power of the eye. People have been rendered sad or bad or mad, exquisitely happy or strongly fortified by a single glance, though no doubt an instinctive divination or knowledge of the man or girl behind the eyes aids the effect on the imagination.

ALBION

Albion, May 20.—Charles L. Herrington was born in the town of Lima, Rock county, Wisconsin, January 6th, 1833. He died Friday evening, May 14th, 1915, at ten o'clock, at the home of his son James, in Albion. He was the oldest of the sons of Solomon and Marietta Herrington.

In 1861 he was married to Catherine B. Scott. They were born five children, George of Janesville, Solomon of Rio, James of Albion, Mrs. Grace Woodard of Fall River and Mrs. Lottie Dates of Albion. The latter died September 2nd, 1899.

Solomon Herrington of Beloit, Wisconsin, brother of the deceased, is the only survivor of his father's family.

Of twenty grandchildren eight were present to attend the funeral.

On January 16th, 1862, this dear father responded to the call of his country by enlisting in Company E, 18th Regiment, Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and was honorably discharged on the 6th day of November, 1865, at San Antonio, Texas, having served three years ten months and eight days.

He was a member of H. S. Swift Post No. 187 G. A. R., at Edgerton, Wisconsin.

Three of his old regiment were here at the funeral, one of whom was Comrade G. Scott of Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin, who was a member of the same company as well as a brother in law. Thus we are reminded of the uncertainty of life and the all importance of a due preparation for the second coming of the Lord and the first resurrection.

A SILENT BOYCOTT AGAINST GERMANS IN BRUSSELS CITY

Belgians Abhor Sight and Presence of Germans in Captured City.—Do Not Molest the Population.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Amsterdam, May 21.—The women of Brussels carry baskets on their arms like market women when they go out in the streets, not for their purchases, but as a buffer between themselves and passing Germans. When one makes a German step off the walk, she rears back and utters a loud cry. The silent boycott of the Germans by the Belgians is even more openly maintained than ever, according to a traveler who has lately lived in the Belgian city. The Germans sit down at a table in a cafe, the Belgians in the vicinity move away. If a number of Germans enter, all of the Belgians pay their accounts and stalk out. The traveler relates this incident which he witnessed.

A German officer, evidently of high rank, entered a restaurant and, after looking over the card, asked the waiter, "Haben Sie nichs besser?"

The waiter, in a sarcastic tone, explained they had nothing better because the German government had seized the food of the city and very little was coming in except on the American relief ships.

A group of young Belgians nearby laughed openly at the waiter's sarcasm, whereupon the German officer, annoyed, gave his card to the waiter to hand to them. The card bore the name of a general. But instead of being satisfied, one of the Belgians asked the waiter, "Haben Sie nichs besser?"

The German force in Belgium has positive orders not to molest the population, but on the contrary to try to get politeness to make the food and utility of the people. But instead of yielding to blandishments, the Belgians only become the bolder in manifesting their hatred to the invaders.

The upper classes in Belgium receive a German into their homes. Should any one, man or woman, make this concession, he would thereafter be ostracized by his fellow Belgians. The men, they show their feeling by acting as if they feared contamination by touching a German in the street, in street cars or other public places. The business of carrying baskets has become a kind of game, and ladies on meeting compare notes as to how many Germans they have made step into the gutter.

A large number of German women of doubtful reputation have followed the army, and if a German officer appears on the street, a woman, she may be of this class, but never a Belgian. The German government has taken many war films in Belgium for exhibition in Germany. One of these films represents an officer, called in Brussels, with the idea of provoking the bitterness of the war has passed away. But the people of Brussels say the women shown in the film were the German habitues of the cafes and not Belgian women.

Brussels is now filled with young German aristocrats occupying civil positions. They said that they are often the only sons left in their families as the result of the war. Consequently the government has spared them in order to perpetuate their titles. Since the German army is offered solely by aristocrats, the upper classes would be otherwise in danger of dying out.

Belgians report that the allies' war-craft keep the railways on the German side of the front so badly torn up with bombs that the civil population feel it is unsafe to travel by train. When they can obtain passes, they go by horse.

Orfordville News

Orfordville, May 20.—Mrs. J. Veatch of Lenoir, Ia., who has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Purdy, left on Thursday and will visit with friends at Brodhead and Albany before returning home to the "Hawkeye" state.

The Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. church gave a ten cent luncheon at the church parlors on Friday afternoon. There was a good attendance, and the society feel much encouraged at the success of the first gathering of the kind of the season.

Mrs. Wesley Jones gave an "Old Ladies' Party" for her mother, Mrs. A. C. Huyke, on Thursday afternoon, the occasion being her eighty-second birthday. About twenty invited guests were present and enjoyed the afternoon greatly. Dainty refreshments were served. The hostess was presented with a large bouquet of carnations, and everyone wished for her many returns of the day.

Capt. Layton Vail is spending a few days with friends in Orfordville.

Diploma examination has been in session at the school house in the village for the past two days. There is a good attendance from the outlying districts and great interest is manifested.

Is Orfordville's new school to materialize this season? This is the question that is being asked, frequently, these days. Delay on the part of Madison parties makes it uncertain as to whether or not the state and has a sufficient amount of money to meet all applications. Should it develop that the application was received too late, the matter will have to go over for another year, unless someone will come forward and offer to stand back of the building enterprise until such times as funds can be received from the state, or the contract be let to someone who will still winter for their pay. The school board has been doing its utmost to secure a definite answer from Madison and telephone wires between Orfordville and the capital have been kept warm for the past few days. Something doubtless will be learned within a few days.

T. A. Luckfield was summoned to Madison on Wednesday to give testimony in the matter of the adjustment of the Valeria and the Footville condensed milk plants. It is rumored that the companies have liabilities of upwards of $400,000 and that farmers about Orfordville and Footville have upwards of $600,000 coming to them. Mr. Luckfield was superintendent of the plant at Footville.

According to the "court notes" of the Gazette another Orfordville youth has been before Judge Maxfield and received "what was coming to him."

Several instances are reported where friends of these "thirsty" ones have kindly removed them from the evening train at Hanover rather than allow them to come to Orfordville and meet the frown of the local magistrate.

The stretch extends south to the bridge and is a county job. I. W. Wheeler of this place has the contract to furnish the gravel and has several teams at work now and is making the work with all possible speed. It is hoped the work in the village will be commenced very soon, of which there are two strips, Church street and West Milwaukee avenue, both county jobs.

COFFEY GETS HIGH PRICE FEVER NOW

Leading Heavyweight Title Challenger Demanding Fortune Sums to Battle Rivals.

(By Hal Sheridan.)

New York, May 21.—The advance signs of coming summer seem not to deter the fight bugs. Straw hats are as common as flies in August along Broadway now, but the indoor winter sport is claiming more than its share of attention. Everywhere there is an undercurrent of talk about the big fighters, and finally the discussion always leads around to the talk of the "When and who will Jess Willard mix it with." That seems to be of more interest to the Broadway fight sport than anything on the calendar just now.

And Billy Gibson's request for $10,000 for Jim Coffey's end in a match with Charley Weinert has stirred the unsettled waters anew. Jack Bulger, Weinert's manager, replied he was willing to split that figure. But Gibson can hold out for Coffey is worth all he can get and would prove a mighty good drawing card in such a match. Of course, the talk of a meeting Willard right soon is a little premature, but Coffey ought to be able to hold his own with Weinert.

But the big idea in Gibson's mind is that Coffey is training for a match with Willard—some time. The date is not of much importance for the big champion is not anxious to display his wares in the ring just yet, but when he is prepared to come out into the ring again, Jim Coffey expects to be sitting inside the ropes waiting for Jess.

So Gibson wants Coffey to meet all corners until the big time arrives, when his fighter will be in condition to stand up to the champ. Billy Gibson is a crafty manager, but it will be some clever work to force the big Kansas cowboy champ into the ring before he wants to.

However, unless Gibson and Bulger come to terms, there is not much chance of Coffey meeting Weinert. The Broadway Sporting club wanted the match as Coffey is a favorite of the New York fight "bugs" just now.

A regular trouble has been wished on McGraw and he can not seem to dump it. Fred Snodgrass is sorely missed by the New York for the outfielders who can both field and hit are at a premium just now. Fred's sore hand must be practically well, and he should be back in the game soon. But picking out the biggies is small work these days. There are so plenty of full time stars in your face. In fact, the old-time stars are neck deep in a sea of misfortune.

The recent winning of the Modified Marathon in New York by Hans Kolehmainen seems not to discourage local runners. Almost nightly a score of white pants and bare legs can be seen running around New York's well known parks. What these nomadic athletes are training for is unknown. Perhaps they are preparing for next year's marathon.

BADGER NINE TAKES GOPHERS INTO CAMP

Roach's Double in Ninth. With Two Men on Bases. Scores Another Wisconsin Victory.

Wisconsin baseball aspirants for the conference title, had a tough proposition in the Gophers at Madison Thursday afternoon. Not until the ninth were the Badgers certain of victory. With the score at 2, there was a pinch runner, and with half an inning to tie the count and win, Wisconsin started a rally. Two Badgers got to second and third, and Roach was in. He doubled and the two men on bases scored. The Badgers secured 15 hits off Young, while Moon and Galvin held Minnesota to ten. Galvin relieving Moon in the ninth. Illinois must have one game to fall back in the race even with Wisconsin.

CUBS BEAT THE BRAVES IN SEVENTH INNING RALLY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Boston, Mass., May 21.—After being helpless before the pitching of Tom Hughes for six innings, the Cubs turned in the seventh and in a seventh inning rally won the opening game of the series with Boston Thursday, by the score of 4 to 2. There was a pinch runner, and with better support would have shut out the champs.

Hughes held the Cubs to four scattered wallons until the seventh, but a wild throw in the second gave the Cubs life through a run. A cluster of solid hits, and a hit by Williams, put the Cubs in front. The Braves failed to connect in their half and the victory gave the Cubs a clean edge on second place.

Reb Russell to Pitch. Chicago, May 21.—Without the weather man interfering today as he did yesterday, the White Sox and the Boston Red Sox will continue their ambitious war today. Reb Russell, the come-back southpaw, is slated to do the pitching for the Sox.

Matty McIntyre is making a sorry start as a manager with Lincoln. A weak staff is the ailment, and efforts are being made to strengthen that department. Lincoln fans are much disappointed over the showing of the team and are insisting that something be done.

MORRIS MILLER

Milburn Saylor, Indianapolis lightweight, will have a chance the night of May 23 to prove that he is the master of Freddy Welsh, lightweight champion. Saylor and Welsh meet in a ten-round bout in Indianapolis the night before the big speedway races. They got together once before and Saylor dropped Freddy in the ninth round. Welsh has always claimed he won on a foul, but Saylor and his manager, Ray Brown, contend Welsh was really knocked out and they present the affidavit of the referee that he did not declare Welsh winner on a foul and that he gave no decision of any kind.

Saylor is a lanky fellow, not at all clever, but with an awkward style which makes him a dangerous opponent. He has a long right and up-percut with which he is apt to be very wild, but which does damage when it lands. He's so tall and owns such a reach that the champion will not be able to do much with him at long range. Saylor is well able to hold his own in the clinches, so he figures to make it interesting for Welsh at every stage.

Jack Dillon and George Chip get together at Indianapolis May 23. This will be in opposition to the Welsh-Saylor battle. Thousands of motorists will be in the Indiana capital that night for the 500-mile auto race the next day, but it's doubtful if the shows will make money. The middleweights are to play a $1, $2, and $3 house, while the promoters of the Welsh-Saylor battle are charging $1, $2, $3 and $5.

Melbourne Inman, champion of English billiards, was the victor in the match at 18,000 points level against George Gray, the Australian phenomenon, by a score of 18,000 to 17,641. Although the champion's title was not an issue, the contest was regarded as a practical championship test. Ivory balls were used. The Sportsman said Inman's general play was the best ever witnessed. Other comments were to the effect that his play had been improved by his American tour. Sporting Life noted that Inman displayed a weakness or a fancy for masse strokes, of which he scored more misses than counts. Inman is now engaged in an effort to concede Tom Newman 2,000 in 18,000 points.

Clarence Rowland, the White Sox manager, is not at all decent in conversational ways. He admits that the White Sox are a stronger team than the Detroit, losing four games to the latter only because his team "failed to get the breaks."

Charley White, the terrific hitting young Chicagoan, certainly isn't overlooking any chances to stir up a nation-wide demand for a long go between himself and Champion Freddie Welsh. Charley certainly is a rare exception among the leading boxers of the hour. Others are content to polish their reputations by merely working for newspaper verdicts over their rivals. Charley is far more convincing in his work. He insists when he boxes on removing all possibility of doubt concerning who should get the verdict. His three most prominent bouts of late were with Sam Robideau at Philadelphia, Editt Murphy at Boston and Hal Stewart at Fort Wayne. He knocked out Robideau in the first round, forced Murphy's seconds to throw the sponge into the ring in the seventh round and just a few nights ago put Stewart down for the count in the sixth round.

The Yankees have released infielder Bill Tamm to Montreal. Manager Donovan says he has the makings of a star player and that he will be recalled in the fall.

Bill Carrigan, manager of the Boston Red Sox, seems to have solved the problem that leaders of clubs in the rival league, the National, claim is almost impossible to solve. They argue that they cannot get results if allowed only twenty-one men. Carrigan is in the west with but twenty players in his party, and the only man whom he really cares about who is not with him is Larry Gardner. McCully, who comes from the St. Paul club, has been playing a fine fielding game at third, but is not as dangerous a hitter as the veteran.

TWELVE GOOD SILO REASONS

One Great Obstacle, the Cost, May Be Partly Overcome by Constructing Pit Silos.

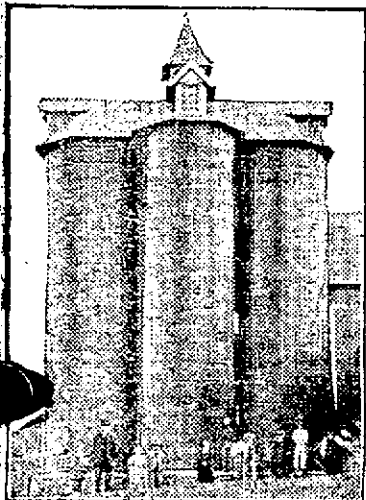

Shall I build a silo?

This question is being asked by the more enterprising farmers and ranchmen all over the West.

The cost of the silo is the greatest obstacle, but if this stands seriously in the way a pit may be dug and finished at a cost not exceeding fifty to one hundred dollars for material. Pit silos are very satisfactory and are certainly to be desired rather than to have no silo at all.

Twelve good reasons why the farmer should provide himself with a silo are given by T. B. Woodward of the dairy division, United States department of agriculture, in Farmers' Bulletin No. 556. Every one of them touches some spot of vital importance to the feeder.

1. More feed can be stored in a given space in the form of silage than in the form of fodder or hay.
2. There is a smaller loss of food material when a crop is made into silage than when cured as fodder or hay.
3. Corn silage is a more efficient feed than corn fodder.
4. An acre of corn can be placed in the silo at less cost than the same area can be husked and shredded.
5. Crop can be put in the silo during weather that could not be utilized for making hay or curing fodder.
6. More stock can be kept on a given area of land when silage is the basis of the ration.

A Battery of Silos on a Pennsylvania Dairy Farm.

7. There is less waste in feeding silage than in feeding fodder. Good silage properly fed is all consumed.
8. Silage is very palatable.
9. Silage, like other succulent feeds, has a beneficial effect upon the digestive organs.
10. Silage is the cheapest and best form in which a succulent feed can be provided for winter use.
11. Silage can be used for supplementing pastures more economically than can silage crops, because it requires less labor, and silage is more palatable.
12. Converting the corn crop into silage clears the land and leaves it ready for another crop.

Almost anything in the way of forage crops may be put into the silo and will keep until it is needed.

DAIRY NOTES

Abuse generally educates the cow to kick.

Peanuts make a splendid crop on the dairy or hog farm.

A good dairy cow is the most profitable piece of property on the farm.

Keep the cows clean and you will not have so much trouble with stringy milk.

The income of the dairy is the most constant and systematic income of the entire farm.

For dairy cows the temperature of the barn should not fall below 40 degrees or rise above 60 degrees.

The good milker is the cow that turns the most feed into the largest flow of good, rich, healthful milk.

The young calf's digestion is very easily upset. Be careful that it is rightly fed and kept in clean quarters.

Leave all other work to help a cow that appears to be in trouble, whether it is your cow or your neighbor's.

Carelessness is one of the most common causes of failure on the dairy farm. Look to your work and to the details every day.

PHILIPP PREPARES SPECIAL MESSAGES

Governor to Send Instructions on Forestry Matters and Election Laws of Legislature.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., May 21.—Before the legislature adjourns Governor Philipp will send two special messages to the legislature. One will deal with the forestry laws, and the other with forestry matters. It was originally planned to send in the forestry message in advance of the one analyzing state expenses this week, but so many financial bills were being considered in the house, that it was deemed advisable by the governor to send the financial message in first.

NEW RELIGIOUS ORDER IS ISSUED IN CHINA

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Peking, April 21.—In order to revive the martial spirit and to promote loyalty to the authority of the President, Yuna Shi-kai has issued a mandate which is in keeping with those recently issued by the worship of Confucius and worship at the Temple of Heaven.

The third mandate revives the worship of the spirits of the Generals Yao and Shun, who were great military men. The ceremony was performed during the month of March by the Minister of War, and many other military men. Similar ceremonies were conducted throughout the country. Old temples dedicated to Yao and Shun, which had fallen to decay and disuse, have been reconstructed everywhere.

REPORT IS MADE ON BRITAIN'S ART TREASURES

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, May 21.—The inroads made upon Britain's art treasures during the past few years by the Metropolitan Museum in New York, by private American collectors, and by the Friedrich Museum in Berlin, are lamented and reviewed in the report of a Committee of the trustees of the British National Gallery, which has just been made public in the form of a government blue book. The committee, which is headed by Lord Curzon, was appointed in 1911 to discuss possible steps to enable Great Britain to retain possession of important works of art.

The report shows that four hundred famous masterpieces are known to have left England in recent years. The list includes fifty-two Rembrandts, twenty-one Rubenses, twenty-seven Van Dycks, ten Holbeins, twenty-nine Jansbroughees and thirteen Turners. The great majority of these have gone to America.

The committee, after four years' deliberation, decided unanimously that it would be unwise for England to enact any law on the lines of the Italian law preventing absolutely the export of important works of art. They also urge against the placing of an export duty on pictures or a stamp duty on sales, both of which have been suggested in Parliament on various occasions.

EMPEROR AIDS FRENCH FAMILY IN OBTAINING GOODS LEFT IN HOME

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Berlin, May 21.—The Taegliche Rundschau publishes an article telling how the Emperor generously responded to an appeal from a French family whose home was in the French city where the Imperial headquarters now are. This family, that of a French lieutenant, fled from the city when it was occupied by the Germans. Before leaving, they packed carefully the things they could not take along, mostly clothing and left part of it in their own house and part in the house of a neighbor where the Emperor now lives. The lieutenant was later wounded and desired to go to the south of France for convalescence, but he and his family needed many of the articles left behind.

Friends of the officer's parents, who live in Luxembourg, advised a direct appeal to the Emperor. They scoffed at the idea, declaring that the ruler had other things to do than concern himself with the clothing of French officers. The friends insisted, however, and a careful list of the things desired was made out and sent, with an appeal, to the Emperor, through his headquarters chief, General von Plehse. The days later a high officer appeared at the headquarters of the officer's parents in a headquarters automobile and delivered, at the Emperor's command, every article on the list submitted.

CORRESPONDENT GIVES ACCOUNT OF JEWISH REGIMENT IN WAR

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, May 21.—The Alexandria correspondent of the Jewish Chronicle sends to that journal an interesting account of the formation in that city of the Zion Mule Transport Corps, a Jewish legion composed almost entirely of refugees from Palestine. Those refugees who were of Russian nationality expressed the desire to serve under the British flag, and the British military authorities immediately took steps with a view to forming a Jewish regiment under command of Colonel J. H. Patterson.

Officers and men wear on their military caps the Jewish token, the "Shield of David," in addition to the British Ensign, and in the camp the words of command are spoken in Hebrew.

TRANSPORTATION DAY AT THE EXPOSITION

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
San Francisco, May 21.—Evolution in transportation will be demonstrated at the Panama Pacific Exposition today when Transportation day is celebrated. The feature of the proceedings is to be a procession. At the head will march a semi-nude savage, carrying a basket on his head, as an example of the most primitive form of transportation known.

In the rear of the parade will come an aeroplane of the latest model, showing transportation in its highest development. Limousines, locomotives, stage-coaches, bicycles, model ocean liners and all other forms of vehicle are to have their place in the procession in the order of their evolution.

RAILROAD WORK STARTED IN MILWAUKEE RECENTLY

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Milwaukee, Wis., May 21.—The force of men employed in elevating the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad tracks on the south side has been increased from 250 to 400 and the work is progressing rapidly. Officials of the road stated today that there was practically no question but that the work will be completed by Dec. 31, the date fixed by the state railroad commission.

The Chicago & North-Western railroad also has begun its track elevation work. Millions of dollars will be expended in these projects, but the danger to life and property along ways present at the grade crossing will be eliminated.

FINANCE COMMITTEE OPPOSES STATE AID TO FARM SOCIETIES

Bill introduced in Assembly. Denying Annual Donations to Various Agricultural Organizations.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., May 21.—New bills introduced in the assembly by the joint finance committee this morning out of various agricultural organizations from sharing in state aid. They are the Wisconsin Dairyman's association, Wisconsin Cheesemakers' association, and Southern Wisconsin Dairyman and Cheesemakers' association. A similar bill was introduced yesterday affecting the Wisconsin Cranberry Growers' association. Testimony was offered the finance committee that these organizations were old and well established and should by rights be on their own feet. The bills are also aimed to carry out the administration's policy of retrenchment and economy.

A bill abolishing state aid for bounty on wild animals also was presented by the committee. It is said the state pays out about $40,000 a year in this way.

Bar Examination Fees.

The committee also introduced a bill changing the system of state bar examinations by exacting a fee of $10 for all candidates, and an additional fee of $15 for the successful ones.

Thus it will cost the losers $10 each and the successful ones $25. No fee is charged for the unsuccessful ones.

A bill also was introduced for the state board of teachers' examiners from $800 to $700 a year. A budget bill for the Grand Army Memorial hall, Madison, making its appropriation $2,000 a year for the biennium, and a bill abolishing the appropriation for the monument at Camp Randall came in.

The new bill by the finance committee provides that money may be drawn from the fund as claims are incurred and audited in the usual way.

For 1915 and every second year thereafter, it is fixed at $18,110. The bill also does away with the office of the state claim agent, but allows the governor to employ special counsel during the legislative session. This was recommended in Governor Phillip's first message.

Readjustment Apportionment.

The committee today reported back to the assembly a substitute to its bill, 530-S, which has already passed the senate, providing for the distribution of the valuation of water, light, heat and power companies. In the original bill 10 per cent of the money was apportioned to the state, 15 per cent to the counties and 75 per cent to the localities.

The committee's amendment gives 10 per cent to the state, 20 per cent to the counties and 70 per cent to the localities. This is the same scale that prevails in the distribution of the income tax revenues.

Preserve Patch of Yew Trees.

A bit of primeval yew forest about half a mile square is carefully preserved in the Bavarian highlands of Germany, the tree, once widely distributed, having become almost extinct in Europe.

FRED TEETSHORN LOSES ARM IN SHREDDER ACCIDENT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Lima Center, May 21.—While shredding corn on his father's place, four miles southeast of Lima, Thursday afternoon, Fred Teetshorn lost his arm. He was working on something outside the shredder and in some way his clothes got caught in the chains and his arm was drawn into the gears, holding him until one of the wheels had to be broken.

Dr. Dike of Johnston and Dr. Dun of Whitewater, were called and they found it necessary to amputate the arm half way between the elbow and shoulder. Teetshorn is a man of unusual courage, and his chances of recovery are good.

Misfortune seems to follow the Teetshorn boys. For Arthur, the older brother, has a crippled arm, which took place several years ago.

Poison Patriotic Memorial.

Cracow was once the capital of free Poland, with a cathedral equivalent to Westminster abbey, wherein sleep the generations of Polish kings and heroes. It possesses the most striking patriotic memorial in the world. This is the Kosciuskobers, a mound 300 feet high, erected to the memory of Kosciusko, and formed of earth from every battlefield of Poland.

What's the Answer?

"I'm looking for an honest man," explained Diogenes as he swung his lantern to and from. "Go to it," replied the cop on the beat. "But what are you going to do with him after you find him?"

DON'T WASH YOUR HAIR WITH SOAP

When you wash your hair, don't use soap. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsumed coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Fertilizers Used in Ireland.

HER MAJESTY'S FUND

By HARMONY WELLER.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Elaine looked long and wistfully at the beautiful ring lying in the palm of her hand. She had promised faithfully that should anything happen to her soldier boy who had gone to the front she would take off his ring and dispose of it.

"It will only be a constant reminder of me," he told her at parting, "and if the battlefield claims me you will forget me the quicker without that ring."

And Elaine had wept, as nearly all of the women in England had wept, when the regiments had gone off with pipe and drum playing. Jimmy Thorpe belonged to the famous Black Watch.

Elaine found her home cheerless and decided upon a trip to New York. America at least was neutral, and there was little danger of bombs and spies to further the wreck of her already ragged nerves.

Two days after Elaine had sailed for neutral lands Ethel Davis was walking down Oxford street. She stopped interestedly in front of a window that displayed an odd assortment of jewelry, embroidery, paintings, Indian relics and historical gems of all kinds. These were being sold for the queen's fund, and many a treasure had been sent when perhaps the sender had not even a shilling to offer.

Ethel gazed longingly at some of the jewelry. It was one of her hobbies to collect odd bits of adornment. She knew that she would be helping to augment the queen's fund should she see anything in that assortment that lured her into purchasing it.

When Ethel caught sight of the beautiful ring that formed an E, her own initial, she was lost. Never had she seen a ring so completely desirable as that one with her birthstone set in to form her letter. Opals and diamonds clustered with exquisite charm made a most lovely ring.

Ethel went into the shop. When she emerged her slim figure felt warm and very much delighted with itself. The new ring was wonderfully dainty on her hand and seemed made to adorn its new owner.

A few days later she motored down to Brighton. Ethel was in the habit of driving down in her luxurious car and taking wounded soldier boys for long, bracing drives.

The day that Jimmy Thorpe was lifted into the seat beside her was a most exciting one for Ethel. She gazed sorrowfully at the kitly, who seemed to be all bandages, and tucked the rugs about him with her own slim hands.

"They are supposed to have done for me now," he confided, as they whirled away from the hospital. "I was reported as having been killed. My mother fainted when she found out I was still in the land of the living. Nice reception that, wasn't it?"

Ethel smiled as she listened to Jimmy's eloquent tongue that had suffered of the Scotch in it to charm her American ear.

"My girl, too, believes me dead," he continued, "and I cannot communicate with her even now. Awful blow it will be to her."

Ethel realized suddenly what a really fearful blow it would be to any girl to lose a Jimmy Thorpe. She was so thoroughly annoyed at herself for blushing that she determined to put down her chiffon veil and hide herself away from his keen blue eyes. During the process of adjusting the veil those same eyes caught sight of the ring he had given Elaine and he drew a swift breath. He was indeed numbered among the ghosts.

"Tell me," he questioned quickly. "Just how you came by that ring—it is the one I had made for my fiancée, Elaine Harris."

When Ethel had told him the whole story she flashed an indignant glance at Jimmy.

"I don't see how any girl could bring herself to give away a ring—under those circumstances."

"She was only keeping her word to me," Jimmy said quietly.

"You could not have made me promise," Ethel told him with laughter in her eyes, "because if I hadn't loved you I most certainly would have loved the ring. Strange that it should be my birthstone and initial—Isn't it?"

"Not so very strange," Jimmy said, "when you think of the future—is it?"

"Perhaps not," she said.

Academy of Birds.

On a little house in London appears the interesting sign, "Academy for Birds," and from the open windows in summer comes a most amazing volume of bird-song. The "professor" is not at all particular as to the breed or value of the pupils offered. Any song-bird is eligible; terms, 50 cents for the course. The "academy" guarantees that each pupil shall leave the establishment fully proficient to render three airs without omission and in correct time.

The method of instruction is very simple, and is said to be remarkably successful. There are three rooms, in each of which is a phonograph which plays a single air. A new bird has his cage hung in room No. 1 until he has learned to sing correctly the constantly-repeated air, and is then transferred to the second, and in time to the third room. The professors are hopeful that some day it may be possible to teach Strauss to a parrot or a Beethoven sonata to a stalling.

SEMI-MONTHLY WAGE PAYMENTS REQUIRED

Governor Phillip Signs Bill Which Met With Strenuous Opposition of Railroads.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., May 21.—Governor Phillip signed today the bill last night providing for the semi-monthly payment of wages by all corporations and enterprises, except those engaged in logging and lumbering operations, or in circus or other traveling shows. The bill is a copy of the law recently enacted in Iowa. The railroad companies opposed the bill before the committee claiming that it would lose upwards of $20,000 additional annually. The bill further provides that any employee who is absent at the time for payment or for any other reason is not paid at any time shall be paid thereafter at any time upon six days' demand. It also provides that any employee leaving his job or his employment or discharged therefrom shall be paid in full for the time he has worked at any time upon three days' demand.

There is no possibility of circumventing the bill by the contract system. The bill specifically provides that special contracts of that character shall be void. Any corporation which pays its employees at the end of the month fifty per cent or more of the amount due for services performed or work done during such month and pays the remainder thereafter at the end of the month next succeeding shall be deemed to have complied with the law. Violations of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100 for each separate offense.

Governor Phillip has also signed the Tompkins bill providing that the state may sue upon the written request of the governor expend state money in fighting forest fires on state lands.

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from Badger Drug store or any druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

MORMON MOTHER IS NOW 91

Belongs to Nonpolygamous Group—Says Founder Smith Never Taught Polygamy.

Lincoln, Neb.—Mrs. Olive A. Hubbard of Lincoln has been a member of the Mormon church for 77 years. She is affiliated with the nonpolygamous branch. "Mother" Hubbard, as she is known, will be ninety-one years old June 24.

She was a convert of Joseph Smith, the founder of the Mormon sect, and her parents were close friends and followers of the prophet. She knew Brigham Young well and heard him preach and pray often while associated with Smith.

"Joseph Smith was a noble Christian man," said Mrs. Hubbard. "He never taught polygamous doctrines and Brigham Young did not dare to teach them till after the death of Smith. Brigham Young was one of the smoothest men I ever knew."

Mrs. Hubbard suffered the hardships of pioneer life with her parents in Illinois in the late thirties and the forties. She is the widow of a soldier of the Civil war who served in the Union army for three years.

Try This on Rats.

A good way to get rid of rats is to collect some thin chips, pieces of shingle or tin and pour over them enough molasses to cover them well; sprinkle dry lye over the chips and place them in every rat hole you can find. The rats will soon move out.

AGRICULTURAL BOARD IS UNBUSINESS-LIKE

COMMITTEE AT MADISON SEE THAT CHANGE SHOULD BE BROUGHT ABOUT.

PROPOSE UNIFICATION

State Fair Has Not Received Proper
Attention—Board of Conservation a Saving.

Madison, Wis., May 21.—"There is in the minds of the committee a very prevalent opinion that the agricultural interests of the state are being cared for and nurtured in a very unbusiness-like manner," says the report of the special legislative investigating committee on the subject of agriculture, just issued.

"The committee has come to the conclusion that the agricultural interests of the state should be grouped together in a compact, unified manner and placed under the direction of a central board, composed of a small group of men," continues the report. "The present state board of agriculture is clumsy and unwieldy in size. It is composed of thirteen members and very often it is difficult even to get a quorum to transact routine business. Only two of the members are actually farmers and the board is made up mainly of editors, real estate men and business men, who are not interested in agriculture, but who are not men who can be really classed as intimately familiar and acquainted with the work of such an important board. At present the main duty of the board is to manage the state fair. The fair, however, has not been well managed. As a business enterprise it has been generally regarded as a failure. It shows either to Milwaukee people without success. It does not reach the farmers for whom it was intended. It has outstanding debts to the extent of $25,000. Under the bill before the legislature, the following boards will be merged into a new state board of agriculture: the board of agriculture, the board of immigration, the live stock sanitary board, the state veterinarian and the inspector of apiaries. The work of all these five departments is so evidently agricultural that there can be no question as to the advisability of combining them into one board.

"Besides these there are ten minor agricultural associations and societies that receive state aid. These are doing excellent work and should be assisted in every way. As a matter of business, however, the state should have some advisory supervision over the manner in which state money is being spent. The same applies to state aid for county fairs. The farmers' institutes should also receive some attention from the new board. It is the thought of the committee that the creation of a real board of agriculture will go a long way toward unifying and identifying all the various agricultural interests of the state by bringing them together under one management. There is no attempt in the bill to destroy or injure any of the lesser voluntary agricultural organizations. On the contrary the purpose is one of encouragement and help. At the present time there is no department of the state that is directly concerned with the welfare of the farmer and his family. We have done much interesting, but have spent little time and less money devising ways of encouraging him and building up the farming communities. The total expense for the different board under the present system is about $400,000 for this year. It is difficult to estimate the actual amount of saving under the consolidation plan because of the fact that indemnities for slaughtered animals and the amount of money needed to control epidemics fluctuates greatly. We believe, however, that approximately $100,000 forestry kept in the pockets of the taxpayers under the proposed plan." The new board is to consist of three members: one a farmer; another a live stock breeder and the third a business man. They will receive $2,500 a year apiece.

Board of Conservation. That the proposed state board of conservation should be about self-supporting instead of costing the taxpayers $100,000 next year as it would under the present system, is the opinion of the same investigating committee. That this is not a new or radical change is evidenced, the committee points out, by the fact that during the last ten years the legislature has spent $25,000 to investigate this subject and the reports of both legislative committees have favored the combination proposed by the present bill. Under this bill there will be a consolidation of the state park board, the state park commission, the state conservation commission, the fish and game commission and the game department.

"The object of the consolidation is to centralize and correlate the interests of the state that are closely allied," says the report. There is given to this board the care of the forests, the lakes, the streams and the wild life in which the state has a proprietary interest. It is duplication of labor and expense to have one arm of the state supervising and controlling the state parks; another the state forests, while the care of the wild life which inhabits the parks, forests and streams should be divided between two other separate and distinct branches of the state. To add to the confusion of duties and powers, a fifth commission is given the indefinite duty of considering the natural resources of the state with reference to their remaining unimpaired."

The new commission or board is to be made up of three commissioners at a salary of $3,500 a year apiece and who must live at Madison. As is the case in the other consolidation bills, the governor is given a supervising control over the number of employees and their salaries so that the people can hold him responsible for any extravagances. The report points out that there has been much duplication of work in the past and declares that the forest rangers for instance can easily become game wardens and that the game wardens can be employed to distribute fish fry and can give better care to the screens and method of planting fry than is in vogue now. It shows that there are about 130 persons regularly employed by the different departments under the present system and estimated that this number can be cut one-third. For next year the committee shows that under the present system the operating expenses will be about $300,000, while under the proposed consolidation it will approximate only $200,000. As the receipts from the different departments this year are estimated at $201,000, the committee concludes that the new board will be about self-supporting.

Board of Welfare. That over $100,000 can be saved in operating expenses alone by the proposed board of welfare consolidation bill is the conclusion of the committee. "The real saving to the state, however, will come from a proper reorganization and handling of the courts, the state and penal institutions," says the report. "It has been variously estimated by the committee as well as by those who gave testimony before it that a proper handling of the state's institutions (to come under the new board) would bring about a saving of close to half a million dollars. To accomplish this the committee proposes to merge the board of control, the board of health, the dairy and food department, the department of weights and measures, the state inspection department and the state treasury agent into one board to be known as the board of public welfare. It is pointed out that all these bodies have to do either with the police power of the state or with the problem of health and can therefore be easily and naturally combined under one head. The new board will consist of five members each to receive $4,000 a year for a term of six years. One is to be a woman; another a physician; another a man familiar with the dairy industry and the inspection of food, and the remaining two to be competent business men. To make the board responsible for extravagance and answerable to the people, he is given advisory control over the number and salaries of the employees of the new board. In justifying this provision the committee points out that it costs the state more to run the offices of the elective officials of the state has not risen to any great extent. It is shown that the cost of the tax commission increased from approximately $100,000 last year, while the office of state treasurer is not much more expensive than it was a decade ago.

"One of the principal objects in combining these five departments is to materially reduce the cost of operation," continues the report. "In fact, this saving the committee does not plan the elimination of any necessary work done at the present time. Another reduction will be in the array of inspectors. At the present time there are over one hundred of them and some of the oil inspectors are drawing $100 a month and working about one-half the time. The taxpayer is asking that these men be paid for one-half time or be given additional inspection to take up the rest of the work hours. It is our opinion that four inspectors will be sufficient. The estimated expense of the new board for the coming year will be $176,265, while under the present system the expenses of the five different departments will be approximately $300,000.

Taking Care of Sewing Machine. After every two days of steady work oil the machine thoroughly, but be careful to wipe away all the superfluous oil. Run the machine rapidly, but steadily, without any thread, for five minutes after oiling. This will cause the oil to scatter, and the superfluous drops can be wiped away and none left to stain the material on which you are working.

"Bankrupt" The discussion on the etymology of the word "bank" in Mr. Justice Darling's court might have been carried a step further by the illustration of our term "bankrupt," says a London paper. The old Venetian money-changers and lenders carried on their business at a stand or bench (banca), and when one was unable to meet his obligations his "banca" was broken (rupta).

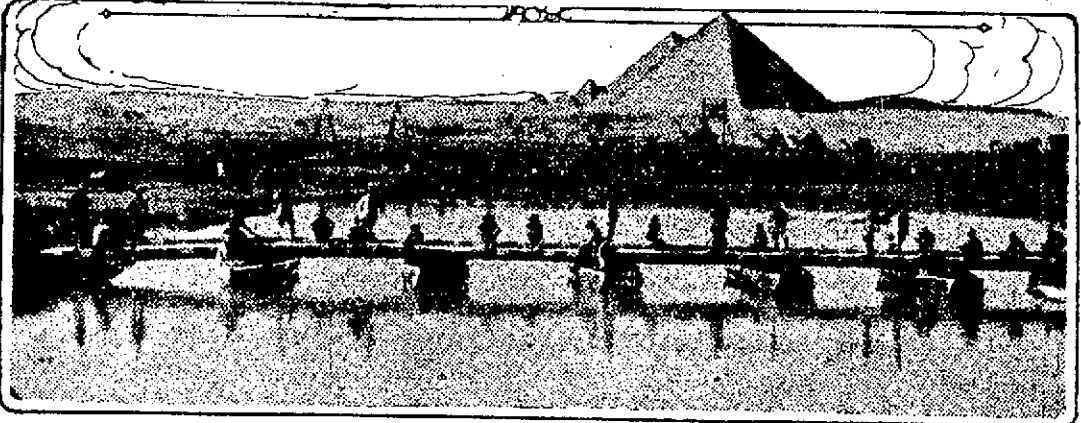

ARMY WAR COLLEGE BUSY WITH PLANS FOR NATION'S DEFENSE

Army War College and its president, Gen. Macomb; one of the big disappearing guns used by United States in coast defense.

General Macomb, president of the Army War College at Washington, has received a letter from Secretary of War Garrison requesting the college to aid him in the immediate preparation of a comprehensive military policy. The first result of his new policy will be the erection of a great fortress at Cape Henry, armed with sixteen-inch guns. The second will be the erection of a similar fortress east of Sandy Hook.

ALIEN CIGARS NOT ALLOWED

Gifts to 'Boost Naturalization Act Barred by the Department of Labor.

Washington.—Inspectors of the department of labor must not hereafter accept gifts of any kind from candidates for naturalization papers, cigars and drinks included, according to an order by Secretary Wilson.

"The aliens mean no harm," a statement by the department of labor says, "when they propose to back up their renunciation of allegiance to their native sovereign with a box of cigars, or sign their petitions for naturalization with one hand while with the other they produce a scarab, a string of beads, a hairbrush or a box of tooth powder to bind the bargain."

The first official frown upon this practice was given by the chief naturalization examiner at St. Louis, who by placards in his office informed prospective citizens that gifts of cigars were not a part of the process of naturalization.

SOLD FIRST TEA IN ENGLAND

Dan Rawlinson's Sign Still Hangs Over Successor's Shop In London.

London.—Two tradesmen, or rather two firms, mentioned by Peppys still exist—Hill, the Bond street violin maker, and Dan Rawlinson of Fenchurch street, the first grocer to sell tea in England, whose concern survives under the name of Davidson, Newman & Co.

The identical sign of three sugar loaves that hung over Rawlinson's shop adorns the present establishment. There, too, may be seen the canisters and scales dating from the seventeenth century. Dan Rawlinson charged his customers 41s a pound for tea.
